Athletic Services' Stock Rises

Ah, the vicissitudes of Canadian University sport. People close to the scene know that a quality brand of action and entertainment is invariably in the offing for spectators. They also realize that, budgets being what they are, full-blown promotion of the various competitive events is a task of the same magnitude as trying to defeat the Edmonton Eskimos. Such was the predicament that The University of Alberta's Department of Athletic Services found itself in. A meeting with President Horowitz was the first step toward extrication. Acting on his suggestion, the Department laid its case before the wider community and soon attracted the attention of one of Edmonton's most prominent service clubs, the Edmonton Jaycees (Junior Chamber of Commerce). Negotiations were held over the past year and, on 9 September, the Department Chairman, Ed Zemrau, announced that the Department had enlisted the support of the Jaycees in "developing a major, long-term promotional program for Canadian University sport in the city.

In essence, a working relationship has been established between the Jaycees and the Department whereby the former will assist in sponsorship of the inter-university program with respect to marketing, advertising and promotion of athletic events. The financial assistance provided by the Jaycees could reach $100,000 for the 1980-81 academic year and so it was with great satisfaction that President Horowitz received a "first installment" cheque of $10,000 from Don Smith, President of the Edmonton Jaycees. "I shall carry it personally to the Comptroller," Dr. Horowitz told the assembled members of the Edmonton sports media.

The Jaycees' objective is to promote amateur sports at The University of Alberta, concentrating on football, men's basketball and hockey, but not excluding any program capable of generating excellent spectator support.

Brian Heaney, Coordinator of Intercollegiate Athletics, said there will be increased emphasis on making people aware of when and where the competitive events are taking place and on reminding fans of the easy accessibility to facilities for such events.

"Corporate and community participation in support of our efforts is essential, and we must work hard in this area as we continue to build on the foundations that already exist," he said.

A Can/Am Volleyball Match is the first venture which the Jaycees and the Department of Athletic Services will turn their collective experience toward. The match, scheduled for 22 September, will spotlight the Canadian and American National Teams at centre court of Varsity Gymnasium.

The working relationship between the Jaycees and the Department of Athletic Services is based on a five-year commitment by both parties. A formula has been established to allow the Jaycees to recoup some of their investment over the term of the agreement. □

Community Support for the Teaching of Arabic

On Thursday, 4 September, a brief but significant ceremony took place in the office of the Department of Classics. The occasion was the presentation of donations to the University to help support the new course in Elementary Arabic which began this month as a joint venture of the Departments of Religious Studies and Classics. The donations, totalling some $2,000, have come from the pockets and purses of private individuals from all walks of life in Edmonton who, while they subscribe to differing religious persuasions, are united in their love for their native tongue and the Arabic culture. The cheques were presented to the University by Mohamed H. Assaf, an Edmonton businessman, and were received by Terry White, Dean of Arts.

According to Earle Waugh, of Religious Studies, community support for the teaching of Arabic is very highly valued. Arabic speaking people, coming especially from Lebanon, were among the earliest immigrants to Alberta, even before it became a province in 1905. Such immigrants settled originally in the Lac La Biche and Edmonton areas and, throughout the last eight decades or so, have maintained a very solid sense of community as citizens of this country as well as offspring of a common culture. This sense of community, Dr. Waugh emphasized, is well evidenced by the contributions made on 4 September and by the desire of the donors to promote through the Arabic language an understanding and knowledge of a milieu that is at once significant in political and economic terms and vital in its cultural diversity.

According to Dr. Waugh, a knowledge of the Arabic language is all but mandatory for studies in certain aspects of philosophy and religious and cultural history. In essence the language is a basic research tool and its acquisition by researchers at The University of Alberta is highly desirable. A second objective is the broadening of understanding here in western Canada of the Middle East.

The value of the innovation is clear, and it may be recognized in the enrolment figures for Arabic 100 which have far exceeded expectations. Students who take the first-year course are instructed by a native speaker of Arabic, Dr. Muhammed Deeb, and already have available Arabic tapes and audio-visual material.

Mr. Assaf and his friends are to be complimented for their support of the University and its new departure. □

Letters

■ The University Health Service would be grateful for any donations of magazines for our waiting rooms. You may be assured that they will be well used and circulated by the students and staff using the service. Although we all contribute to the available literature, it does disappear with a regularity which is amazing. We surely do have some "avid scavengers".

Strange Perspectives: The Theology of Ingmar Bergman

"Call it what you like," said the Knight. "Is it so cruelly inconceivable to grasp God with the senses? What's going to happen to those of us who want to believe but aren't able to?"

Whether it is a scene of Death playing chess with a doubt-ridden mortal, the journey of a man through the Swedish countryside reliving his life's memories or the struggle for a man and woman to find meaning and comfort in their relationship, the films of Ingmar Bergman wage battle with the essential components of life and faith. Is there a God? Why is God silent in the face of so much human suffering? Can love survive in 20th Century life?

These questions and others are to be confronted in an Ingmar Bergman Film Series entitled "Strange Perspectives: The Theology of Bergman" this fall. Co-sponsored by the University of Alberta Chaplains' Association and the Students' Union Theatre, the Bergman Film Series will bring together six of Bergman's classic films.

The "Strange Perspectives" Series includes: "The Seventh Seal" (18 September); "Wild Strawberries" (25 September); "Smiles of a Summer Night" (2 October); "The Virgin Spring" (9 October); "The Magician" (23 October); and "Autumn Sonata" (30 October).

"The Seventh Seal" is Bergman's stunning allegory of man's search for meaning in life. A knight, after returning home from the Crusades, plays a game of chess with Death while The Plague ravages medieval Europe. An exceptionally powerful film, it is a work of awesome scope and remarkable visual pleasures.

"Wild Strawberries" is the widely acclaimed account of a doctor's journey through a compelling landscape of dream and memory. Travelling to receive an honorary degree, he is confronted with a series of haunting flashbacks and events that in a day's time reveals his very depths. Richly visual and startlingly dramatic, "Wild Strawberries" is a cinematic landmark.

"Smiles of a Summer Night" is a frivolous comedy, with all of the fun and nonsense of old style flirtation, all done with superb sophisticated taste, with delicate wit and precise comic timing.

"The Virgin Spring" grimly depicts a father's ruthless vengeance for the rape and murder of his virgin daughter. Bergman fills the viewer's eyes with highly contrasting black and white to evoke an imaginative medieval world, suggesting the battle of Christianity and paganism. For a man of Bergman's sophistication, the austere simplicity of this film is a rare achievement.

"The Magician" features a wandering magician who comes bearing a bag of tricks that turn him from magician into savior, then to conman and finally to artist extraordinaire. Max von Sydow leads a brilliant attack on modern rationality and cynicism in this film.

"Autumn Sonata." What we most need is what we are least able to give. What we cry out for is the very thing we cannot accept when it is offered. An agonizing statement of a fundamental human problem, the oppressive weight of which is only relieved by the superb acting of Ingrid Bergman and Liv Ullmann.

Each film will be shown once at 8 p.m. in the Students' Union Theatre. After the film, there will be opportunity for discussion of the themes, images and theology in Bergman's Art.

The "Strange Perspectives" series ticket, providing admission to all six films, is $12. Admission for each film individually is $2.50. Tickets are available at the HUB Box Office and from the Chaplains' Offices in 158 Students' Union Building. For additional information on the Bergman Film Series, please phone 432-4513.* □

A.H. Lefever, of the firm of Reynolds, Mirth & Cote, will discuss the role of the lawyer. The Land Titles system in Alberta and the title registration process will be discussed by Herb Prager, a Land Titles Administration Officer with the Land Titles Office of Northern Alberta. Finally, tips on what to look for in sound housing construction will be given by a speaker from the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, Edmonton. There will be a question and answer period following the talks, and as well several informative pamphlets will be distributed.

The seminar is aimed chiefly at first-time home buyers but would also interest anyone who has ever been involved in owning a home or property. This is the first of a planned series of "Saturday Morning Law Schools" which will be presented by Student Legal Services if public demand is high enough. Future suggested topics have included landlord and tenant problems, small claims actions and a seminar dealing with family law questions.

Admission to the seminar is free, but is by ticket only. Tickets may be obtained either by dropping in or phoning the main administration office. It is located in room 114 of the Law Centre, the phone number is 432-2226. Attendance is limited to roughly 170 persons.
